

Abstract

A method, computer program, and database system for controlling operations that may be performed on a user-defined type (UDT) are disclosed. The UDT is derived from an underlying type that has a set of underlying operations. The method includes creating the UDT and 5 activating zero or more underlying operations for the UDT.